

Questioning that leads to inferential thinking

Name: _____

Section: _____

Learning Goals:

- ☒ I can use questions to challenge an author's message or point of view; I can question whether he or she is right or shares my beliefs, feelings, and opinions.
- ☐ I can tell you exactly how my questions help me understand this text or any text I read better; most of my questions are the kind that can't be answered directly in the text and would probably lead to interesting discussion.
- ☐ I can articulate how using this strategy makes a difference in my comprehension.

The Spider and the Fly Mary Howitt "Will you walk into my parlour?" said the Spider to the Fly, " 'Tis the prettiest little parlour that ever you did spy; The way into my parlour is up a winding stair, And I have many curious things to show you when you are there." "Oh no, no," said the Fly, "to ask me is in vain; For who goes up your winding stair can ne'er come down again." "I'm sure you must be weary, dear, with soaring up so high; Will you rest upon my little bed?" said the Spider to the Fly. "There are pretty curtains drawn around, the sheets are fine and thin; And if you like to rest awhile, I'll snugly tuck you in!" "Oh no, no," said the little Fly, "for I've often heard it said They never, never wake again, who sleep upon your bed!" Said the cunning Spider to the Fly, "Dear friend, what can I do To prove that warm affection I've always felt for you? I have within my pantry, good store of all that's nice; I'm sure you're very welcome - will you please take a slice?" "Oh no, no," said the little Fly, "kind sir, that cannot be,	I think...
